Dear Randall,

Thank you for your outstanding presentation at our annual Leadership Conference. It was both entertaining and thought provoking.

You were exactly what we were looking for: a professional whose message empowers our employees to be creative and encourages our supervisors to foster a culture of innovation at every level.

As a multi-national corporation with many competitors, we realize that creativity and innovation are critical to our future. Our company's success depends on the message you gave us. You showed us how every one of us can be more creative and motivated us to strive for constant innovation.

You clearly fit our culture of solid business ethics, trust, and respect for each person. You so skillfully interjected specific references and examples from within our corporation that some wondered how long you have been part of our organization.

Without hesitation, I recommend Randall Munson to any organization looking for a great speaker with valuable business insights.

Sincerely,

Floyd Wilson
